Result of Vote in National and State General Election

California complimented Hiram W. Johnson last Tuesday by returning him to the Senate by majority of over 400,000.

Friend W. Richardson's majority for governor crowds the 200,000 mark.

[illegible] and amendments receiving majority votes were:

Veterans' Validating Act.
Veterans' Bond Act.
Annexation of Cities.
Borough Form of Government.
State Budget.
Chiropractic Act.
Osteopathic Act.
School Bond Act.
Judges Pro Tempore.

The important amendments which were defeated are:

Prohibition Enforcement.
Housing Bill.
Veterans' Tax Exemption.
Water and Power Act.
Absent Voting.
Practice of Law.
Anti-Vivisection.
Single Tax.

Results outside of California show a decided rebuke to the Harding administration. The Republican majority in both houses of Congress has been almost wiped out. Lodge just won in Massachusetts and Beverege lost in Indiana.

Except in Ohio, wherever people had an opportunity to express themselves on the liquor question, the tendency was decidedly "wet."

Concerning Johnson's big victory, a Moore man remarked yesterday;

"Johnson is nominated for President in 1924."

This week's heavy rains were just what contractor Sid Ruthven wanted to aid him in making a good job on his Ocean avenue contract. The ground is thoroughly packed where packing was necessary to insure the stability of the rock and concrete.

SYMBOL OF ARMISTICE DAY

THAT first Armistice Day, four years ago, was not merely a celebration of the triumph of brute force; it was the triumph of a Principle—and all real Principle involves justice, love, understanding. With each returning Armistice Day there should be a larger understanding, a greater growth in the qualities which make for cleaner civilization and more consistent and harmonious living.

The boys gave their lives on the fields of France and Belgium, not only so that a nation might live, but so that all nations might live and expand and grow greater in love toward each other.

If, out of the confusion and hate and battle of that awful time there can emerge a better understanding, a cleaner citizenship, the destruction of life and property will not have been in vain. If we can grow in national character and thought as well as in prowess, Armistice Day will finally mark a truce with hate, followed by victory.

Planning Commission Has Idea for Beautifying Street

THE City Planning Commission held its regular monthly meeting last Wednesday afternoon and voted to bring before the board of trustees a plan for planting the park (not parking) spaces on Ocean avenue with hardy native shrubs. The following list of shrubs was approved: Wild currant, lilac, spirea, snowberry, the fuchsia-flowered gooseberry, brown genista, the artemesia Californica (sage), also cascara seeds, foxglove and common myrtle.

All these shrubs can be transplanted safely at this time of the year and require little care or water during the summer months.

The board also recommended that a couple of days be set aside next week for this planting and that they appoint a suitable committee to receive the shrubs and see that they are properly set out. The names of Frank West, A. Vachel and C. Summer Greene are suggested. Volunteers are called for to go into the woods and secure the shrubs.

The park spaces recommended are, particularly, the sections along the center of Ocean avenue, and it is proposed the sidewalks shall have a uniform width of eight feet, regardless of the material used, with four feet along the curb for planting.

A committee consisting of Mr. Greene and Mrs. Porter was appointed to confer with the real estate people regarding the too numerous "for sale" and "for rent" signs at present adorning Carmel.

Dr. Alfred E. Burton, C. Sumner Greene and Helen Parkes were detailed to draw up plans for commercially zoning the city.

It is also planned to construct a footpath at the foot of Ocean avenue, from San Antonio street to the bathhouse. It will be inexpensive and will wind through the sand dunes.

San Carlos Day is Fittingly Celebrated

By MARIA ANTONIA FIELD

The feast of San Carlos Borromeo, the patronal feast of Carmelo Mission, was celebrated last Sunday at the Mission with all its traditional customs and time-honored memory. The Very Rev. R. M. Mestres celebrated mass at 10:30, at which a large number of worshippers received communion.

The historic edifice was beautiful in its decoration of Carmel pines, and the altar in a red and gold scheme and many candles. The decorating was in charge of Miss Harriet Hatton and her nephew, William McAulay.

Father Mestres was vested in the old richly brocaded vestments which which were originally worn by Junipero Serra, and presented to the Mission by the then reigning royal family of Spain, together with other gifts of value, among them masterpieces of art which adorn the church walls.

Both in Spanish and English Padre Mestres addressed the congregation on the meaning and lessons to be drawn from the feast of the day, especially those of charity and sacrifice.

The mission choir, under the direction of Thomas V. Cator, beautifully rendered St. Basil's Mass and the Benediction service, the solos being by Mrs. Joseph Mora and Mrs. E. M. Leach. Both have excellent voices and were much appreciated.

Benediction, solemn procession in honor of the saint of the day, and the blessing of small pieces of pine branches, which were distributed to the congregation, ended the religious portion of the celebration.

The meeting of the old Rife de San Carlos and a lunch in honor of the members thereof and the choir, was given by the joint hospitality of Father Mestres and Miss Harriet Hatton, a thing which her much lamented mother always did.

The work of mission restoration is progressing and when completed will make a wonderland of the mission grounds and surrounding country.

Last Call for the Soldier Memorial Fountain Fund

A year ago today a bunch of public-spirited loyal American Legion boys started a movement to perpetuate the memory of their fallen comrades with a memorial of stone to be erected on Ocean avenue.

Winsor Josselyn, Argyll Campbell, Harrison Godwin, Ernest Schweninger, and Charles Van Riper planned and carried to a triumphant finish a double vaudeville entertainment. They went merrily into the fray, gave generously of their time, money and talent; and all for the sake of a tender sentiment.

Is it possible that these boys have more sentiment for those who served, more pride in their sacrifice, than we who stayed at home and did without sugar and bought liberty bonds. People of Carmel, these boys will go to the bat again with another big entertainment rather than leave unfinished that pile of stone at the head of our avenue. Do you want or expect them to devote another month of their time and energy to do what should be your glorious privilege to complete.

Should it matter that the fountain is made of cut stone instead of rough rock? That it was done by day labor instead of contract? That money was wasted? That the design is unsuitable? If those boys, who were willing to fight our battles, had started a structure to reach to high heaven, and if it were to be made of shifting sand, still would it be meet to say, "Let's carry on!"

Miss Margaret Stewart, Miss Ellen O'Sullivan and P. L. MacDonald have been generous this week. There is $37.50 to report. This brings the balance down to $132 yet to get. P. L. MacDonald came into the office and cussed, as he added to his generous contribution of a few weeks ago.

"Damitall," he said, "I want to give another five. I'm tired of seeing this thing staring me in the face. It's just got to be finished."

So say more of us!

What local Croesus will send us a check for the keystone of the arch, and end this standing reproach to our civic pride?

Feed the Beasts

The business people of Carmel were certainly appreciative of the twenty-seven hours of continuous service rendered by the election board Carmel precinct No. 1 in the city hall. Donations of fruits, ice cream, coffee, sandwiches, etc., were made. Edler & Ward, the Curtises, the Bashams and Carmel Bakery were the donors. The members of the board are appreciative of the consideration of these merchants, and take this opportunity to say so.

Careful search for the drinking shell which was removed from the Harrison grounds on October 31st, leads to the conclusion that it was taken away by a vandal tourist. Information concerning same should be communicated to the city marshal.

COMPETITION TO RESULT FROM RAIL DIVORCE

In a scholarly and comprehensive survey in the University of California Chronicle for October, Professor Stuart Daggett, Dean of the College of Commerce and Professor of Railway Economics at the University, discusses the separation of the Central Pacific Railway lines from Southern Pacific control, as ordered by the Supreme Court's mandate of May 29. Professor Daggett analyzes the question both from a legal standpoint and as to the economic aspect of the proposed change in administrative control of the Central Pacific lines. He reaches the conclusion that the Supreme Court's mandate should be carried out and that the results which would flow therefrom would be substantially in the public interest.

The proposed separation, he says, constitutes "a step in the creation of a limited number of railway systems which can survive upon a common basis of rates, and leaves open existing channels of trade, and it preserves competition — a fundamental policy upon the soundness of which the law insists. While the subject is eminently one upon which honest men may differ, the writer sees nothing in the objections raised to the unmerger which outweigh the merits of the plan, and nothing in the alternatives suggested which are equally adapted to secure the same result."

Professor Daggett is an acknowledged authority on railway economics. He was formerly instructor on this subject at Harvard University. He is a member of the American Association of Economics, and has written, among other books, "Railroad Reorganization" and the recently published volume, "Chapters on the History of the Southern Pacific." In his article in the University of California Chronicle, Professor Daggett outlines the considerations which make desirable the separation of the Central Pacific from the Southern Pacific and a common control of the Union and of the Central Pacific Railroads, in part as follows:

"First, a merger of the two companies would make it certain, to use the words of the Pacific Railroad acts, that the Central Pacific and the Union Pacific would be 'operated and used for all purposes of communication, travel and transportation, so far as the public and government are concerned, as one connected, continuous line.' The Supreme Court has held that these words call for more than mere continuity of track and service, and that they make unlawful certain kinds of discrimination by one of the Pacific railroads against the other with respect to rates, time, and transportation. Congress authorized the construction of the Central and Union Pacific railroads in pursuance of a single purpose, the linking of the Missouri River with the Pacific Coast. It was not thought essential in 1862, nor is it essential now, for the two roads to be under a single corporate control in order to achieve the continuous service hoped for; such a control would, however, make unlikely, once for all, any interruption in through business.

"Another reason for the transfer of the Central Pacific to the Union Pacific is that it creates a line over the Central route which will be a fair counterpoise to the combined Santa Fe and Western Pacific or the Burlington and Western Pacific, which students of the Transportation Act regard as advantageous western systems. Professor Ripley emphasizes this point, with direct reference to his own plan for the regrouping of western lines, and his statement has force, although the considerations which support it cannot be presented here.

"A third argument for the transfer of the Central Pacific to the Union Pacific railroad is that competition for business to and from the Pacific Coast will be thereby increased. This competition is expected to express itself in a more effective utilization of the Ogden route, and since this route is properly considered to be a main route and channel of trade into and out of California, the argument applies at once the test of competition and the direction of the law with respect to the commercial requirements of the country served.

"The anticipation of increased competition in northern California as a result of the transfer of the Central Pacific to the Union Pacific is based on the fact that the transfer places the control of the former company in the hands of a corporation primarily interested in the development of traffic via Ogden instead of in those of a corporation which secures a larger profit from freight which moves out of California via El Paso than it does from traffic which moves via Ogden."

It is the irony of fate, points out Professor Daggett, that one of the clearest statements that the transfer of the Central Pacific to the Union Pacific would increase competition via the Central route is to be found in the testimony of Mr. William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific, before the California Railroad Commission in 1913. Mr. Sproule, Professor Daggett points out, now vigorously opposes the separation on the ground that the public has nothing to gain by breaking up the properties and stands only to lose by the complications which it is alleged would follow.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

By Ann Burroughs

From One Big Girl to Another

The following was taken from "The Manchester Guardian" of August 16 and 17 and its genuineness as material from the uncorrected diary of a girl of fourteen is vouched for by that paper.)

"Always go to bed as soon as you conveniently can, for late bedgoing is very bad for little children, and annoys their parents, who think they can never go to bed before their kiddies.

"Be clean and decent at meals, say 'please' and 'thank you' often, and never stretch unless your father is absent-minded.

"Don't eat off your knife unless your parents do for a treat, and never eat more than you can.

"Never allow your mother (if she is an incompetent one) to buy you vulgar or inelegant clothing. If she want to do this, the best thing to do is to appeal to your father, and if he doesn't take your point of view you will be forced to go to law, which only means you explain all to the nearest policeman.

"A bad habit of children is to bite their nails. I have only just stopped myself. It doesn't really make one any comfortabler to bite ones nails, and if you leave off now, you will be very proud soon of your long white nails, which make your hands a pleasure for you to look at, instead of a pain, and it will also encourage you to wash your hands often.

"Offer to mend your father's socks and sew on his buttons. You must see that he is suitably clad and quite tidy, for to begin with, your mother will like him too much to notice these things. You ought to learn to darn at an early age.

"You should also learn music at an early age, for it is great fun being able to strum on the piano. But do not do it too often, else you will disturb your father with his money matters.

"An important thing, too, to tell children, is how to behave when staying away. When you travel in a train alone, dear child, don't talk to any men in the railway carriage, only occasionally to very old ladies. If a kindly benevolent old gentleman offers you a sweet, do not accept it, he might be an inventor trying an experiment to see if the sweet could blow you up or something equally dangerous. Don't lean out of the windows in the train, someone might give you a shove.

"At meals always eat as fast as you decently can, for visitors always get left behind which annoys their hostesses.

"Be as sociable and friendly as you can, but do not gossip or give away family secrets."

Shackled Youth

We make every boy and girl in America go to school from five to seven hours a day, five days a week, until he is well into his teens, but we are so careless as to have the spiritual, mental and moral instructors of his youth either underpaid, underfed, and certainly undersocialized women or aenemic men, most of whom have but an imperfect knowledge or understanding of the matter between the covers of the text books from which they teach, and few of whom have an outlook on life which the parental sponsors of this universal system of compulsory training would deem desirable to communicate either directly or indirectly to growing children, the makers of the civilization of the coming generation. Because Mr. Edward Yeomans' volume, "Shack led Youth," a study of education fails to meet this fundamental problem of modern schooling, it lacks significance. But because it is choicely written and filled with dreams of what ideal and enhaloed teachers might be, it is a delight to glance through.

Your Children's Reading

I expect you would like to know what sort of literature to give your children. When they are first beginning to learn to read don't give them "So-Fat and New Mew;" it makes them sentimental at once. You ought to give them either lively, easy books, or else, dry, dull ones which won't work on their brains. Up until about thirteen they ought to read books like "Masterman Ready," "What Katy Did" "Norse Fairy Tales" and children's adventure and school books. Over the age of thirteen they could begin reading a few exciting novels such as "The Red Cockade," "The Scarlet Pimpernel," and "She." Children over fourteen ought to begin to read Jane Austin, Charlotte Bronte, Mrs. Gaskell, Frances Burney, and others of these famous authoresess books. They can gradually go on to Thackeray, Hudson, Scott, Trollope, Stevenson, and to all the great writers. Children over twelve ought to very much enjoy John Buchanan and the lighter books of Arnold Bennet, such as "Huge," "The Grand Babylon Hotel," and "The City of Pleasure," all of which are very thrilling and blood-curdling books, and some children ought not to read them at night.

Resident of Varied Attainments Passes

W. H. J. Brown of Yarmouth Nova Scotia, who has been a resident of Carmel the past two years, passed into life eternal on Sunday morning at the home of himself and his sister, Mrs. Roberta B. Thudichum after a sudden illness of a few hours. Mr. Brown had returned from Sonoma county two days before and attended that day to the many duties which he always performed around the home until night. After dinner he was stricken with apoplexy and his sister helped him upstairs and called upon Dr.C.A. McCollom for medical attention at once. With the help of the Rev. Fred Sheldon he was laid in bed where he sank quickly into unconcsiousness and never rallied. He is survived by his only sister, Mrs. Thudichum. Dr. Carl Thudichum arrived from Hollywood Monday night to be with his wife and pay his last respects. Services were held at the J. K. Paul undertaking parlor at Pacific Grove Monday morning conducted by Mr. Sheldon and the body was cremated in San Francisco Tuesday November 7th, with a short service there of the Episcopal church of which he was a member.

Mr. Brown was born in Yarmouth, one of the earliest settled towns of Nova Scotia, of which his grandfather, Reverend Harris Harding was a distinguished founder. His father Robert Balfour Brown, was a professor of languages in Providence R. I. for some years, an artist and scientist, archaeology and mineralogy being his specialties. His mother, Hannah Curtis Brown, was a writer of distinction and recognized in the New England periodicals, contributing among others to the Boston Transcript and Atlantic Monthly. Having graduated at Mount Allison College it was natural that her son should attend that institution also, after which he was sent to Boston Latin High School, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and later studied dentisty, which he chose as his profession and practiced in Boston many years. A physicial breakdown followed and for some years he worked at engraving and design of gold and silver, in which he had shown exceptional talent. The failure of theBank of Yarmouth some years ago, in which he held stock through the estate of his mother, caused the confiscation of all his property and when his sister moved to California he came west to remain with her. During his residence here he was connected with the Canadian secret service. He was a man of unusual gentleness of heart, a great student of natural history and lover of the beautiful in life. No greater tribute can be paid him than that heard at the services on Monday, that he was a gentleman always to everyone who came in contact with him.

Peter Mawdsley, Jr. Officially Acclaimed

Last Sunday was a real sunny California day and Peter Clare Mawdsley, lusty addition to the ranks of the Golden State was christened at All Saints Episcopal church, Rev. F. G. Williams officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated with white flowers. Young Peter, who wore a dress of hand-made embroidered voile, emitted a slight wail when he felt the first sprinkle of water on his head, but braced himself against the pastor's shoulders and went through the rest of the service like a "regular fellow."

The baby enjoyed the proud distinction of having for godfathers the Rev. Joseph Harry Ward of Manchester, England, an M A. of Cambridge, and James Henry Worthington of Carmel, an M. A. of Oxford. The former was represented by Peter Mawdsley of Carmel and the latter made his own responses.

After the ceremony the guests assembled at the home of the Mawdsleys, where a tasty and delightfully prepared tea was served. Calvin Hogle sat on a couch and smiled; Mrs. Mawdsley, Mrs. Hogle and Miss Somerville assisted in putting the finishing touches to the "eats"; Harry Somerville and Peter Mawdsley (who accompanied Mrs. Banks Gwyther in two appealing vocal numbers) hovered over the plants; Miss Elizabeth Gillis whispered sweet nothings in Miss Pamela Banks Gwyther's ear (which the Major and I. T. Somerville tried to intercept); Mrs. Bertha Somerville held the cause of all the jollification in her arms and James Worthington found time frequently to turn his studious but benevolent gaze on his newly acquired godson.

It was a beautiful day, a beautiful party and a beautiful baby.

New Blue Bird to Devote Opening to Little Theater

Miss Mossie Hunkins has the real community feeling. For a long time she has wished to do something for the little theater and now she has found the opportunity to do it.

At 8 o'clock tomorrow (Sunday) evening, November 12, the new Blue Bird Tea Room, on Ocean avenue, opposite Pine Inn, is to be opened with an entertainment for the benefit of the Arts and Crafts Little Theater. Miss Hunkins will donate the refreshments, the artists give their services, so that every fifty cents, (which is the entrance fee) will go intact into the pockets of the building fund.

The program sounds enticing. It is a rare occasion when we are permitted to hear Miss Alice MacGowan read one of her own charming short stories. Miss Blanche Tolmie has been persuaded to sing some old and unusual French and Italian folk songs. Mrs. Valentine Mott Porter will read, we don't yet know what, but we know that it will be interesting. And last, John Hagemeyer, who happens to be passing through Carmel just at the right moment, is going to tell us something of his own art, the newest of all the new adventures in strange and difficult mediums of expression. Anyone who has seen his beautiful exhibition at the Mission Tea House, will know what is meant when it is stated that the pictures give one another sight of the beauty of life. They also give one a deep feeling of respect for the creative power in the artist, that it can burst through even such dense material as the camera plate.

Alcazar Conscripts Carmel Actress

An event of unusual interest to Carmelites is to occur at the end of this month, when Miss Katharine Cooke leaves for San Francisco to join the Alcazar stock company.

"Kitty" Cooke is one of the best known of Carmel's younger set and has done a great deal during the past ten years to further our dramatic activities. Her first venture was in 1912, when she played 'Alice' in Perry Newberry's arrangement of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland." Later she was assistant producer to John Hilliard in the revival of this interesting play. Miss Cooke has played many leading roles in our best Forest Theater productions, among them "The Talisman," "Yolanda of Cypress," "One Thousand Years Ago," "Pygmalion and Galatea," and "The Piper." She also produced "Pomander Walk," the annual play of 1921.

Miss Cooke is fortunate in being associated with Thomas Wilkes, the owner and manager of many first class stock companies in the United States. It is under the Wilkes management that Channing Pollock's "The Fool" is now playing in New York. His sister, Wilhelmina Wilkes, assists him in his enterprises, having been the managing director of the Majestic of Los Angeles and of the Alcazar of San Francisco. She is married to Dixon Morgan, the technical director of the Alcazar, and has been the guest of Mrs. H. M. Bremner of Carmel in times past.

Katherine Cooke is the daughter of Grace MacGowan Cooke, the well-known author, and the niece of Alice MacGowan, also author, and collaborator with Mrs. Cooke on several best sellers.

AUTO INFO

W. E. Spoon delivered seven new Fords last week and has several more sold. Spoon is also agent for the classy Lincoln car.

The new Star car was on exhibition for a short time on Ocean Avenue the other day and attracted much attention. This new Durant creation promises to be very popular.

There was recently raised in San Francisco, in one day, $12,000 for the improvement of the Victory Highway in Utah and Nevada. It was a part of the $50,000 which San Francisco is to raise for that purpose, while the remainder of the state raised $100,000 for the same purpose.

Motorists from other states touring in Northern California next year will find a new service to aid them in exploring new recreation grounds. The California State Automobile Association is now compiling for the benefit of visiting motorists a large map of points of interest in all Northern and Central California counties. On the back of this map which will be given to visitors free of charge will be printed a brief description of the senic and histoiral points listed.

Black and white will be the colors for the 1923 California automobile license plates. The plates have been adopted by the state motor vehicle department and are now being manufactured.

The field will be black and the numbers white. The numbers are equaly divided, with "Cal. 23" between them. The whole makes an attractive plate, and, unfortunately for the speed violator, is declared to the easiest plate for officers to read that has been hung to the radiator and tire rack of the California automobiles for years.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

Mrs. O. E. Odell has brought her 4-months'-old daughter to Carmel for the winter.

Miss Gwendolen Perry has taken a short leave of the university and is spending her vacation in Carmel.

Harrison Godwin and W. A. Nares of Pebble Beach left Wednesday morning by auto for a three day business and pleasure trip to Fresno.

Genevieve Chilver is staying at Hoffman's Camp, Palo Colorado canyon, where she is writing feature articles for the San Francisco newspapers.

A unique affair is scheduled for next Friday evening at Rancho La Playa. Harrison Godwin, who is keen on new joy-giving stunts, has planned a "nut" dance—meaning, of course, that the big dance hall will be fitted up as a place where irresponsibles are confined. Can you imagine what a good time everyone will have?

Of course, all observing Carmelites know that this city is growing, but most of them will be amazed to learn that the building permits issued during the first nine months of this year, aggregate $170,000. The actual cost of the improvements is much larger than this, as the permit figures are always lower than the actual cost.

Fine Movie at Local Theater

By PETER PAN

Carmel has a sense of humor—the youngsters especially. Those who saw the fresh, original picture at the Manzanita Theatre last Saturday night will vouch for this. "One Glorious Day" went over well, and the little "imp of pep" will not soon be forgotten.

Another treat is in store for movie fans in Carmel tonight, when Zona Gale's "Miss Lulu Bett," will be shown. Commenting upon this photo play, Robert E. Sherwood, "Life" screen critic, writes:

"Miss Lulu Bett" is an altogether admirable piece of work. In adapting Zona Gale's novel to the screen, Mr. DeMille has shown a vast amount of good taste, and, more than that, of good sense. He has pictured the patheric Lulu as she was pictured by Miss Gale. . . . He is ably aided by Lois Wilson, who, after the first reel or so, achieves a perfect conception of Miss Gale's unhappy heroine. At the start Miss Wilson rather overdoes the Sis Hopkins make-up, but this fault vanishes after her marriage to Ninian Deacon—who, by the way, is splen-[illegible] Clarence Burton. The cast, the mis-en-scene, and Clara Beranger's scenario are all good. In short, "Miss Lulu Bett" is a sane intelligent and interesting picture."

Moving Picture Program at Manzanita Theater

Tonight — William De Mille production, "Miss Lulu Bett."

Saturday, Nov. 18—Wm. S. Hart in "White Oak."

Saturday, Nov. 25—Ethel Clayton in "Exit the Vamp"

John Galsworthy Drama at the Monterey Theatre

"The Skin Game" is not a movie, but a play. It is under the management of that greatest of theatrical producers, William A. Brady, and it comes to the Monterey Theatre tonight. It has a many-sided appeal; it is both low-brow and high brow; it is brilliantly written, intensely interesting; it is a wholly human play of class conflict. Those who enjoy a dramatic treat should not hesitate to take a trip over the hill tonight.

World's Most Famous Model

Antonio Corsi, probably the world's most famous model, is living at present in southern California. Several years ago, he resided in Carmel for some time. While here he posed for a picture of Father Serra and since then has been here from time to time to pose for art classes.

It is Corsi who appears as the Christ on the cross, in "The Crucifixion," the painting of Princess Louise, then Duchess of Argyile; and it is Corsi who transforms his face into that of the Devil in Baron Arlald Rosekratz' painting, "The Tempter." He posed for Sargent, Holman Hunt and Sir John Milais.

Antonio Corsi furnished the inspiration for many of the figures which adorned the buildings and grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco in 1915. In "The Nations of the West," "The Court of the Universe," and other groups at this exposition, it is Corsi's face and figure that appeared, while he was the model for the statue of "The Scout," which attracted more attention than any other single piece of similar work at the big fair. Today, he is preparing for more posing, for figures, murals and paintings for the Portola Festival, which is to be made an annual fete in San Francisco, similar to the Mardi Gras of New Orleans, and the Rose Carnival at Portland.

Picture Producing in North

A recent article in the San Francisco Chronicle reviews the motion picture industry in the North and states that at least eight companies have been organized here, are backed by local capital and are producing pictures that are on the release programs of some of the big distributing corporations.

Among them is the Paul Gerson company which has a fully equipped studio on Tenth street and is engaged at present in the production of the Plum Center series of comedies with the veteran Dan Mason and Wilna Hervey as the featured members of the casts. Already nine of these comedies have been completed. They have been taken for release by the American Releasing company. One of them, "Pop Tuttle's Clever Catch," was shown recently at the Strand in San Francisco, the theater which presents Griffiths, Fairbanks, Pickford, Chaplin and Ray pictures for their premieres.

Miss Hervey is the sister of Thomas Vincent Cator of Carmel. She and Dan Mason's daughter, Nan, spent several months here this last spring.

Splashes and Splutter

Charles G. Norris' "Brass," which goes into production in the movies under the direction of Sydney Franklyn, is to star Monte Blue in the leading role. Marie Prevost will play the leading feminine role.

Thomas Vincent Cator has had unexpected honors and emoluments thrust upon him. He has been appointed director of the chorus of the Pacific Grove Musical Society. Rehearsals will start shortly for the first concert, which is contemplated for Christmas holidays. An orchestra of thirty pieces has been secured and will be under the leadership of L. E M. Cosmey.

The San Francisco League of American Pen Women will give a Book Fair on November 17 at the Fairmont Hotel. Mrs. Frederick Colburn, who spoke last spring in Carmel at the entertainment furnished by the Arts and Crafts to the ladies of the Bankers' convention at Del Monte, will have a prominent part in the program. In the book pageant, which will be one of the interesting attractions of the affair, will be "Mother," by Kathleen Norris, "Jane" from "Jane Journeys On," by Ruth Comfort Mitchell and "The Dancing Feet," by Anna Blake Mezquida.

Medea Radzina, who played the leading role in "Enter, Madame," last week at the new Stage Guild Theatre in San Francisco, is a graduate of the world-famous Moscow Art Theater, headed by Constantin Stanislavski, and now being brought to the United States by Morris Gest, the New York theatrical manager. The first play will be Tolstoy's Russian historical tragedy, "Tsar Fyoda Ivanovitch." It will probably reach San Francisco next spring.

Humane Society Gives Thanks

The Carmel Humane Society desires to express through the Pine Cone its gratitude for the generous response to its appeal for financial assistance. The mite boxes disclosed $7.50 in ten-cent pieces, representing a little over one week's contributions.

Checks have also come in, not only from Carmel, but from the outside, showing that the work has caught the attention of Carmel's absent friends. A fund has been started toward the establishment of a "Shelter" for homeless animals, without which little can be done.

Local Library Acquires Number of New Books

Quite a number of new books were added to the Carmel Library, both by gift and purchase, last month. They will be reviewed from time to time in the columns of the Pine Cone. The list includes:

Rough Hewn, by Dorothy Canfield.
Certain People of Importance, by Kathleen Norris.
Afoot in England, by W. H. Hudson.
The Iron Paddles, by J. J. Davis.
A Day of the Beast, by Zane Gray.
Judith of Godless Valley, by H. Willsie.
Charles Rex, by E. M. Dell.
Memories of a Hostess, by Mrs J. T. Fields.
Maradick at Forty, by Hugh Walpole.
Babbitt, by Sinclair Lewis.
The Tale of Triona, by William J. Locke.
The Evil Shepherd, by Oppenheim.
When the West Was Young, by F. R. Bechdolt.

The Truer Things of Life.

We stand together at another fullness of time; perhaps it is a fullness in which material things, the man-made things, bulk largest. Perhaps it is a time in which confidence in the human seems to excel confidence in the divine. It is becoming increasingly evident that there must speedily come to men the visions of life and real values as they find their finer and larger interpretation of him whose birth the world celebrates at Christmas. There is a tragic, if inarticulate, appeal being made today for a return to the homelier, stronger and truer things of life; we are looking for a new birth of goodness that shall restore our lost peace and bring back again to earth the deeper satisfaction of the human heart.—James E. Freeman.

Boys' Club Here and in San Francisco

Apropos of the foundation of one of the most efficiently handled boys' clubs in the state is the following excerpt from an article in a leading San Francisco daily:

"This month marks the third anniversary of the Jordan Park Boys' Club, an organization unique, not only in San Francisco, but probably in the entire state * * * * * Mr. Feinstuck, while convalescing from an illness which kept him confined to the house, heard some rather violent language proceeding from a group of boys in the street. This led him to consider plans for a club and the Jordan Park Boys' Club was the result. The membership is limited to twenty, and the meetings are held the first Tuesday of each month. The boys have visited the chief industrial plants, and have had addresses from representative men.

Aside from the actual working benefits to the boys themselves, perhaps the most impressive part of the entire scheme is the proof it offers that somewhere, everywhere, there is always a man to be found large-minded and unselfish enough to devote time and thought to the training of the men of tomorrow, on whose intelligence and mental equipment may rest the fate of our present civilization.—San Francisco Journal.

How about the Carmel Boys' Club? They have been in existence for eight years. They hold two meetings a week and always have refreshments. They have had frequent activities durthe past year outside the routine meetings, such as a trip to the Santa Cruz Big Trees, Beach suppers to the little brothers, Pirate Party, Hallowe'en Party, illustrated lectures and talks by Mr. Beardsley, Dr. Burton, Mr. Sheldon, Jo, Mora, and others.

During the year 1920-21 seventy-eight boys passed through the clubs. There is now a waiting list in the Junior club. All of this is made possible by the loving guidance of their immediate sponsors, Miss Ida Johnson and Miss Josephine Culbertson, and the hearty cooperation of the friends of the boys to whom the leaders take this opportunity of again thanking.

THE CHRISTMAS WATCH

SAVE for the engine's rhythmic beat
The ship is wrapped in dreams,
Behind it on the darkened deep
A wake of silver streams.
I walk my lonely watch, and hear
The voices of the brave
Old vikings chant their sagas wild
In roar of wind and wave.
God seems a little nearer here,
Far out upon the grand
Blue sea than when I used to keep
My Christmas on the land;
For — so it seems to me — the stars
Are shining angel eyes
That watch above the mariner
From nations in the skies.

RED CROSS WINNING IN FIGHT FOR HEALTH

Better, Stronger Citizenry Now Emerging Out of Work in United States.

The American Red Cross as an evangelist of better health has looked its problem square in the face. How it accepted the task revealed to it in the nation's physical condition as brought out during the World War, and conscientiously applied its activities to correction forms a vivid chapter in the forthcoming annual report. Historically and practically, nursing is a basic work for the Red Cross. In its public health nursing service, in instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, nutrition classes, first aid and life saving courses and health centers, the American Red Cross is applying effectually the lessons learned during the war and making for a healthier, stronger and better flourished citizenry.

The task of the Red Cross Public Health nurse in the 1,240 nursing services now operating throughout the country instructing their communities in health essentials and disease prevention is demonstrating the possibilities of human betterment and the great benefits of enlightenment.

During the last year 313 new public health nursing services were established by Red Cross Chapters, and several hundred services so convincingly proved their effectiveness that they were taken over by public authorities. In order to promote this work $30,000 was allotted to provide women to prepare themselves for public nursing. The home visits made by the 1,240 nurses aggregated nearly 1,500,000, visits to schools numbered 140,000, and in six months 1,250,000 school children were inspected by these nurses and where defects were found advised examination by physicians. In rural communities this service has made a very marked advance and has won thousands of converts to approved methods of disease prevention.

In home hygiene and care of the sick instruction, which fits the student in methods of proper care where illness is not so serious as to require professional service, the Red Cross conducted 3,884 classes during the last year, enrolled 2,356 instructors, 93,448 students and issued 42,656 certificates.

On June 30, 1922, nutrition service embraced 1,199 classes, with a total of 27,523 children and 2,589 enrolled dietitians. Seventy-eight food selection classes graduated 733 who received Red Cross certificates. In general health activities Red Cross Chapters maintained 377 health centers, serving as many communities, provided 38,751 health lectures for large audiences everywhere, while clinics numbered over 10,000.
